New strategic framework 2006-2010

‘Deepening our strategy and moving towards becoming an expertise organisation’

- Embedding (fully operational)
Incorporating ICT at a project, organisational and policy level
- Harvesting (in process)
Collecting and disseminating the results of our work through M&E activities and knowledge sharing (impact studies)
- Leveraging (new)
Demonstrate and lift our experience on ICT4D to a broader set of stakeholders (impact the ICT4D agenda) through public and private knowledge-based strategic alliances’.

Why leveraging?

- To achieve a wider impact on poverty alleviation
- To integrate and fund ICT in development programmes
- To respond to an increasing number of requests to assist in mainstreaming ICT4D programmes by governments and donor agencies
- To share IICD's expertise with a larger number of Southern and Northern partners and to learn from partners in expertise areas not present in IICD
- To make more use of in-house expertise

Expertise areas of leveraging

- Participatory identification of ICT4D needs and priorities with multiple stakeholders (health, governance, education and livelihoods)
- Advising on and facilitation of participative and multi-stakeholder ICT4D formulation processes as part of sector and national policies
- Mobilising and implementing effective multi-stakeholder networks for knowledge sharing and policy participation in ICT4D

Criteria for leveraging

- Principles
Priority to leveraging opportunities that align best with basic principles
- Scale
Assistance of activities of larger-scale development programmes at sector or national level (> 1,000,000 euros)
- Partners
Longer-term partnership with Northern or Southern partners, based on a co-funding arrangement;
- Expertise
Availability of competent staff in the required expertise areas (IICD + partners)
- Scope
Focus on our key sectors education, governance, livelihoods and health and for leveraging in current focal countries.
